

Laboratory of Zoology

Short Description of Scientific Laboratory Division

The different mechanisms ecological, ethological and microevolution researches between species of amphibians, reptiles, and small mammals from sympatric populations in Armenia are studied.

Comparative genetic variability of sympatric populations of parthenogenetic and bisexual species of rock lizards and the hybrids formed as a result of their hybridization are conducting, as well as the age of individuals and particularity of their reproduction are carried out.

The morphofunctional particularities changes of a spleen, liver of amphibians from reservoirs of different level of pollution are studying.