OUR LECTURERS

Our lecturers are distinguished professors and researchers, bringing knowledge and expertise to their fields.

Dr. Haykuhi Muradyan

Course Name: The History of Armenian culture

The history of Armenian culture offers students a profound exploration of the historical and cultural narrative and contemporary realities of the Armenian people. Through a diverse range of topics, students delve into the rich tapestry of Armenian history and culture, spanning from ancient origins to the modern era, encompassing both the homeland and the Diaspora. The course provides a comprehensive understanding of key historical and cultural events, cultural developments, and socio-political dynamics that have shaped the Armenian identity over millennia.

Dr. Harutyun Harutyunyan

Course Name: Religion in Armenia: History and Present

The series of interactive lectures are going to explore how religion was expressed and developed in Armenia throughout its turbulent history. The ancient Polytheistic Cults, Zoroastrianism, Oriental-Orthodox Christianity, Armenian Catholicism and Protestantism, Islam, Neo- Paganism and many other smaller religious movements are going to be explored and discussed here both from the historical and current perspectives.

Dr. Robert Sukiasyan

Course Name: History of the Armenian Genocide: An Introduction

This course acquaints students with the Armenian Genocide. Through firsthand narratives, literature, art, and various primary sources, students will delve into the historical context, political, social, and economic factors behind the genocide, its implementation process, and the repercussions of this crime against humanity. Special emphasis will be placed on prioritizing Armenian sources concerning the Armenian genocide.

Dr. Suren Manukyan

Course Name: Deep Dive Through the Armenian History

This course examines the history of Armenia, its land and people. The course will cover foundational points of the Armenian history from antiquity to the modern age. Students will critically examine historical events, processes, actors, and models of history writing. Head of the new UNESCO Chair on Education and Prevention of Genocide and Other Atrocity Crimes at Yerevan State University.

Dr. Varuzhan Geghamyan

Course Name: Armenia's Regional Politics: History and Perspectives

The entire history of Armenia is a narrative of intertwined local conflicts and geopolitical competition among various regional powers for influence in the South Caucasus. Furthermore, the political and socio-cultural changes that occurred in Armenia had significant repercussions on major geopolitical transformations throughout the entire Eurasian region. Throughout this course, we will delineate the history of Armenia from a geopolitical perspective.
